<sup>(1)</sup> The Adviser has a contractual obligation to waive a portion of its fees and to assume certain expenses of the Fund to the extent that the total annual fund operating expenses, excluding taxes, extraordinary expenses, brokerage commissions and interest, exceed 1.50% and 1.25% of average daily net assets of Investor Shares and Institutional Shares, respectively. These expense limitations are in effect until November 1, 2010. Prior to that date, the arrangement may be terminated for a class only by the vote of the Board of Trustees of the Fund.

EXAMPLE

This Example is intended to help you compare the cost of investing in the Fund with the cost of investing in other mutual funds. The Example below shows what you would pay if you invested $10,000 over the various time periods indicated. The Example assumes that you reinvested all dividends and other distributions; the average annual return was 5%; the Fund's total operating expenses (reflecting applicable contractual fee waivers and expense reimbursement arrangements) are charged and remain the same over the time periods; and you redeemed all of your investment at the end of each time period.

Although your actual costs may be higher or lower based on these assumptions, your costs would be:

	1 Year	3 Years	5 Years	10 Years
Investor Shares	$153	$2,588	$4,661	$8,595
Institutional Shares	$127	$2,527	$4,581	$8,513

PORTFOLIO TURNOVER

The Fund pays transaction costs, such as commissions, when it buys and sells securities (or “turns over” its portfolio). A higher portfolio turnover rate may indicate higher transaction costs and may result in higher taxes when Fund shares are held in a taxable account. These costs, which are not reflected in annual fund operating expenses or in the example, affect the Fund’s performance. During the most recent fiscal year, the Fund’s portfolio turnover rate was 94% of the average value of its portfolio.

PRINCIPAL INVESTMENT STRATEGIES

The Fund, under normal circumstances, invests at least 80% of its assets in equity and equity related securities of U.S. and foreign companies. The Fund normally invests in the securities of companies that are tied economically to at least 10 countries, including the U.S. The Fund may invest in companies located in developed and emerging markets. Emerging markets include countries that have an emerging stock market as defined by Standard & Poor’s, Inc., countries or markets with low- to middle-income economies as classified by the World Bank, and other countries or markets with similar emerging characteristics. The Fund may at any one time invest all or substantially all of its assets in foreign companies and at another time invest substantially in U.S. companies, although, under normal market conditions, it is expected that a majority of the Fund’s assets will be invested in foreign companies. The Fund may invest in companies of any size. For purposes of the 80% investment policy, equity and equity related securities include: common and preferred stocks, securities convertible into common stock, and warrants on common stock.

The Adviser evaluates investment opportunities for the Fund using a proprietary value-oriented process that seeks to identify companies characterized by three attributes: change, neglect and relative valuation. The Adviser seeks to identify those changes that are material to a company’s operations, outlook and prospects while also identifying companies that it believes have been neglected by other investors. Through a qualitative and quantitative research process focused on these attributes, the Adviser strives to identify and invest in relatively undervalued companies. These factors formulate the Adviser’s investment case for each company under consideration for investment. An important function of the Adviser’s investment process is to set a price target at which the security will be sold, provided that there has been no fundamental change in the investment case. The Adviser constantly monitors the portfolio companies held by the Fund to determine if the security continues to act in accordance with the Adviser’s initial assessment. Ordinarily, once the Adviser believes that an investment case has realized its anticipated prospects, the security will be sold. Additionally, the security would typically be sold if the identified change does not have the expected impact on earnings and cash flow of the company or a company’s fundamentals deteriorate, or due to other market conditions that would cause the Adviser to believe a sale would be advisable.

PRINCIPAL INVESTMENT RISKS

It is possible to lose money by investing in the Fund. There is no guarantee the stock market or the stocks the Fund buys will increase in value. The following is a summary description of certain risks of investing in the Fund.

Risks of Foreign Investments. Investing in foreign securities involves special risks that can increase the potential for losses. These risks may include nationalization or expropriation of assets, illiquid foreign securities markets, confiscatory taxation, foreign withholding taxes, imposition of currency controls or restrictions, and political, economic or social instability. Because many foreign markets are smaller, less liquid and more volatile, the Fund may not be able to sell portfolio securities at times, in amounts and at prices it considers reasonable. In some foreign countries, less information is available about issuers and markets. Foreign markets may offer less protection to investors. Foreign stocks can fluctuate more widely in price than comparable U.S. stocks, and they may also be less liquid.

Currency Risk. The Fund generally invests in securities denominated in foreign currencies, and could experience gains or losses solely on changes in the exchange rate between foreign currencies and the U.S. dollar.

Emerging Markets Risk. The risks of investing in foreign securities are generally greater in emerging markets, or to the extent that the Fund invests significantly in one region or country. The extent of economic development, political stability, market depth, infrastructure, capitalization and regulatory oversight can be less than in more developed markets. Emerging market countries may experience rising interest rates, or, more significantly, rapid inflation or hyperinflation.

Market Risk. Stock markets are volatile and can decline significantly in response to adverse issuer, regulatory, market or economic developments. Different parts of the U.S. market and different markets around the world can react differently to these developments. When market prices fall, the value of your investment will go down. The recent global financial crisis has caused a significant decline in the value and liquidity of many securities. The Fund may experience a substantial or complete loss on any individual security.

Company Risk. The value of an individual security or particular type of security can be more volatile than the market as a whole and can perform differently from the market as a whole. This may result from a wide variety of factors that affect particular companies or industries, including changes in market demand for particular goods and services, increases in costs of supply, changes in management, increased competition and changes in regulatory environment.

Value Investing Risk. Value stocks can perform differently from the market as a whole and other types of stocks and can continue to be undervalued by the market for long periods of time. The Adviser may be incorrect when it decides that a stock is undervalued by the market.

Risks of Small and Mid Cap Companies. Compared to mutual funds that focus exclusively on large capitalization companies, the Fund may be more volatile because it invests in small and/or mid capitalization companies. Small and mid capitalization companies are more likely to have more limited product lines, fewer capital resources and less depth of management than larger companies.

Risk of Increase in Expenses. Your actual costs of investing in the Fund may be higher than the expenses shown in “Annual Fund Operating Expenses” for a variety of reasons. For example, expense ratios may be higher than those shown if overall net assets decrease. Net assets are more likely to decrease and Fund expense ratios are more likely to increase when markets are volatile.

These and other risks are discussed in more detail in the Fund’s prospectus or in the statement of additional information.

An investment in the Fund is not a bank deposit and is not insured or guaranteed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or any other government agency.

PAYMENTS TO BROKER-DEALERS AND OTHER FINANCIAL INTERMEDIARIES

If you purchase shares of the Fund through a broker-dealer or other financial intermediary (such as a bank), the Fund and its related companies may pay the intermediary for the sale of Fund shares and related services.
