5. Important Information About Procedures for Opening a New Account

To help the government fight the funding of terrorism and money laundering activities, Federal law requires all financial institutions to obtain, verify and record information that identifies each person who opens a new account.

What this means for you: When you open an account, we will ask for your name, address, date of birth, Social Security number or tax identification number and other information that will allow us to identify you. We may also ask to see your driver's license, passport or other identifying documents.

In addition, certain state laws require us to inform you that if no activity occurs in an account within the time period specified by applicable state law, the account owner's property may be transferred to the appropriate state where a shareholder could seek to reclaim it.
