How did the Fund perform during the reporting period?

During the fiscal year, the Fund underperformed the Primary Benchmark Index (Russell 3000 Total Return Index) and outperformed the Secondary Benchmark Index (Russell 3000 Value Total Return Index). Against the Secondary Benchmark Index, relative outperformance was attributed to stock selection within the Consumer Discretionary, Industrials, and Materials sectors. Conversely, stock selection within the Consumer Staples, Information Technology, and Real Estate sectors was a headwind to relative performance. We saw an improving earnings outlook for small to mid-cap companies as we progressed through 2024. Down cap companies' earnings were more negatively impacted by the inflationary pressures and rise in interest rates than larger cap companies in 2023. Updated performance information is available at www.crmfunds.com/funds-overview/performance/.

Effective May 23, 2024, the Fund adopted the Russell 3000 Total Return Index as its broad-based benchmark index that represents the overall equity market. The Fund also compares its performance to the Russell 3000 Value Index, which is a more narrowly based index that reflects the market sector in which the Fund invests. The Russell 3000 Value Index was formerly the Fund's primary benchmark. These changes were made to comply with a new regulatory requirement.
